Mothers' Day

Mothers, alchemists of celestial love, embody strength in tender grace. Through vigilant nights and selfless days, they paint portraits of sublime devotion. Their touch heals unseen wounds, words ignite dreams. In their embrace, solace is found. From cradle to eternity, a mother's love, timeless and divine, transcends all bounds.

On the occasion of Mothers' Day, here is a small message from our side to all the moms out there -

Dearest Progenitors,

On this joyous morning that pays homage to thy illustrious essence, let us unveil profound sentiments. As thy offspring, we stand in awe of thy resilient grace, thy ceaseless ardour, and thy tender embrace. Thy nurturing aura transcends the tempo- ral realm, birthing love's luminescence. Oh, Mother divine, thy benevolent spirit nourishes souls, moulding futures with sage guidance. Today and every day, we prostrate before thy magnificence, basking in the splendour of thy maternal radiance. Happy Mothers' Day, cherished matriarch!

On the occasion of World Poetry Day we conducted an inter organisation Poetry Competition, and we could not be proud enough to say that our team is not only efficient in their technical skills but are true wordsmiths. Here is a glimpse of some entries.

LOVE IS STILL ALIVE

No!!!

In the reddish vista,
In the wavering frenzy of mind
In the thousand grains of sand on the beach
Love is still alive.

The one who lay his ears on the beach waiting for the evening,
to hear the sound of anklets,
to smell the soil,
to feel the Sargam of waves,
he is the one.

Yeah, he is the one
in this world of darkness,
who can drink the colours of love
He can paint his granny's story, the unreal dream of the fourth Prahara, the burning heart of the genderqueer and the life of the dishonoured whore.

I will again say, "Love is still alive";

How?

Oh, do not ask me, dear
I am not a Lover,
not God,
not a Mother.

THE HERO OF MY LAND

From the deepest lie to the darkest truth,
A will to carry and keep things smooth,
An ocean of secrets sunk within him,
Like a lone wolf he treks, not showing any grim.

A thundering rain or a whirl of fire,
A blazing hailstorm or a fog too dire,
To save the day, a thought as his basis,
Like a mountain he stands, halting the crisis.

A place so hot, as dry as a bone,
A desert uproar or on dune all alone,
Guarding the land in a heat not humane,
Like a river he flows, with a passage so sane.

Till the sun gets low, from the dawn of day,
Across the snow, where the frozen lake lay,
As the cold winds blow, the blood runs still,
Like a ray of hope, shines his keen fiery zeal.

Are all these words enough to narrate him,
To sum up some pain, some laugh and grin,
I'll be lucky, if I could live a life so grand,
Afterall, He is a soldier, the true hero of my land.

I'M MY FATHERS DAUGHTER

When I was born everyone is like again a daughter
But my Father says so what she is my Daughter People used to say I'm just like you,
But deep down I know no one like you
I just want to let you know
I feel safe when I'm with you You're there when no-one with me
To make me feel I'm not alone
Words can't describe how much I LOVE YOU Because
You're the reason I proudly say Yes I'm My Father's Daughter...

BROKEN LINES ON A BLANK PAGE

Broken lines on a blank page,
Each mark a path of thought and rage,
Once straight and neat, now torn apart,
A reflection of a troubled heart.

Ink spilled across the empty space,
Words that once had meaning and grace,
Now jumbled and confused, they lie,
A portrait of a restless sigh.

Each line a journey, each break a leap,
A struggle to express and keep,
The words that long to be set free,
Yet caught in the web of anxiety.

But even in the brokenness we see,
A beauty in the lines set free,
A rawness in the unspoken word,
A tale of a soul yet unheard.

So let the broken lines remain,
A tribute to the heart's refrain,
For in the chaos, there lies a gem,
A masterpiece waiting to stem.

On weekdays we have a call
In which we join all
In morning I take it as a drill
Join the call to feel the thrill
Always clients have more expectations
We say no better way than these options Always we think it is the last build
Then the new feature makes us wild
Match requirement, client calms
Client in fire we use tiger balms
We have so much confusion and hesitation
After clarification, We go for the completion
After completion, our team cheered so much
The client appreciate our team's approach

MEIN SHARMINDA HO GAYA

Maine phoolon se kaha ,
zara apni khosboo bikher kar dikhao , toh usne kaha yea toh mera farz hai , aur usne tabhi apni khosboo bikher kar dikha dii ,
par jab usne mujhe mera farz yaad dilaya ,
mein sharminda ho gaya...
mein sharminda ho gaya...

she asked 'will you be mine',
I said 'I like wine',
then she said 'Nevermind..'
I want to be your sunshine'

All the sufferings they have gone through,
the pain that they carry within,
Tell me how will you feel about it?
All you see is a mirage that they want you to, the depth of the scream you think you can deal with?

The outer impenetrable shell you see,
but have you noticed the uncountable shattered walls within?

Buzz off don't try to break it just for fun, think about them, what will happen in case you win?

You want to help them with all your might,
but you won't break the broken pieces right?

Stay if you must, but you dare not leave cause they won't let you go without a fight.
